

May 14, 2016

Instructional Quality Commission and California State Board of Education
1430 N. St., Suite 5111
Sacramento, CA 94814

Dear Members of the Instructional Quality Commission and the California State Board of Education:

I support all of the enclosed recommendations made by the Bataan Legacy Historical Society on the history/social sciences curriculum framework for Grade 11, Chapter 16, in accordance with Assembly Bill AB199 (2011).

It has been almost 75 years since the Philippines (U.S. colony from 1898-1946) and its people were called upon to put up a gallant fight against the Empire of Japan after the bombing of Pearl Harbor and the Philippines. Despite suffering from massive disease and starvation, Filipino and American soldiers of the U.S. Army Forces in the Far East (USAFPE) were able to disrupt the timetable of the Imperial Japanese Army by defending the Bataan peninsula for 99 days. The ensuing Bataan Death March led to the death of 10,000 Filipino and 750 American soldiers. Another 20,000 Filipino and 1,600 American soldiers died while imprisoned at Camp O'Donnell. While everyone knows of Pearl Harbor and the European Theater of War, the war in the Philippines and the Pacific Theater are almost forgotten.

Today, we have an opportunity to set the record straight by putting this seminal point of WWII history in the history curriculum framework of California. It will be the first time that American students in high school will learn of this great sacrifice made for the freedom that they are enjoying today. California will lead the country in doing this and we are asking you to implement a history curriculum framework that will accurately portray the sacrifices made by Filipinos and Americans during World War II.

I support the recommendations made by Bataan Legacy Historical Society and urge you to do the same. Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Catherine Ceniza Choy
Professor of Ethnic Studies, UC Berkeley
ceniza@berkeley.edu
UC Berkeley Department of Ethnic Studies
506 Barrows Hall, MC 2570
Berkeley, CA 94720-2570

Home Address:
1246 Monterey Avenue
Berkeley, CA 94707

IQC HSSC SMC Approved Text(Summary of Actions 24 March2016)	Bataan Legacy Historical Society Comments on HSSC SMC Approved Text	Bataan Legacy Recommended Text
The US army, which included American and Filipino troops, led by General Douglas MacArthur, were unable to defend the territory and strategically retreated to the jungles of the Bataan Peninsula. Although American and Filipino troops lacked ammunition and food, and thousands were sick from malaria and dengue fever, they managed to defend Bataan for 99 days. MacArthur fled to Australia during this period, vowing, "I shall return." On April 9, 1942 General Edward P. King, Jr., US commander of all ground troops in Bataan, surrendered his 76,000 sick and starving troops (American and Filipino) to the Japanese, one of the most grievous defeats in American military history. The captured soldiers were then forced to march more than 60 miles north in what became known as the Bataan Death March. Conditions during the march were brutal. POWs who couldn't keep up due to exhaustion or a lack of food or water, they were beaten, bayoneted, shot, or in some cases, beheaded by Japanese soldiers; approximately 10,000 Filipinos and 750	This version overlooks the fact that majority of the troops were Filipinos. AB199, the legislative mandate for this curriculum revision is about the role of the Filipinos during WWII. The significance of the Battle of Bataan must be stated as it delayed the 52-day timetable of the Imperial Japanese Army despite massive disease and starvation. "I shall return" does not add value to the framework and continues to perpetuate the MacArthur myth. He did not flee but was ordered to leave for Australia. Majority of the troops died during the march and not during the journey in the boxcars. fate of the American soldiers of USAFFE must be included in this curriculum. Thousands of Filipino guerrillas laid the groundwork for the eventual liberation of the Philippines during the 3 years prior to the liberation.The	The U.S. Army Forces in the Far East (USAFFE) comprised of American and Filipino troops who manned seven-eighths of the main line of resistance and led by General Douglas MacArthur, were unable to defend the territory and strategically retreated to the jungles of the Bataan Peninsula. Despite suffering from massive disease and starvation and fighting without any air support, the USAFFE troops performed a delaying action that disrupted the 52-day timetable of the Imperial Japanese Army by defending Bataan for 99 days. On March 12, 1942, General MacArthur left the Philippines for Australia. On April 9, 1942, General Edward P. King, Jr., Commanding General of Luzon Force, surrendered 63,000 Filipino and 12,000 American troops. They were forced to march some 60 miles to their prison camp at Camp O'Donnell with no provisions for food, water or shelter. Those who could no longer go on were beaten, bayoneted, shot and in some cases even beheaded by their Japanese captors. Approximately 10,000 Filipinos and 750 Americans died in what

IQC HSSC SMC Approved Text(Summary of Actions 24 March2016	Bataan Legacy Historical Society Comments on HSSC SMC Approved Text	Bataan Legacy Recommended Text
Americans died along the way. If the POWs survived the grueling trek, they were packed into pre-war boxcars for transport to prison camps. Thousands of soldiers died in the journey and in the camps from sickness and starvation. Over the next three years, the US employed an island-hopping strategy to push back the Japanese advance. In February 1945 American and Filipino forces finally recaptured the Bataan Peninsula; Manila was liberated the next month. By the end of the war, approximately 1,000,000 civilians had died and Manila became the second most devastated city in the world after Warsaw.	Capture of Bataan Peninsula is no longer significant at this point. The Battle of Leyte Gulf is the seminal event that destroyed the Imperial Japanese Navy leading to the defeat of Japan.	became known as the Bataan Death March. Once inside Camp O'Donnell, approximately 20,000 Filipinos and 1600 Americans died. A majority of the American prisoners were later transported under dismal conditions in the hulls of unmarked vessels termed as "Hell Ships" to Japan, China, Formosa and Korea where they worked as slave laborers. Thousands died en route by friendly fire. Many more died while serving as slave laborers. During the next 3 years, the Filipinos and Americans formed guerrilla groups which laid the groundwork for the liberation. On October 23 to 26, 1944, the Battles of Leyte Gulf destroyed the Imperial Japanese Navy. Manila was liberated by March 1945 killing 100,000 civilians, approximately half by Japanese massacre and it became the second most devastated city in the world after Warsaw. By the end of the war approximately 1,000,000 civilians had died in the Philippines.

Catherine Ceniza Choy

<http://www.catherinecenizachoy.com/>

<http://ethnicstudies.webvanta.com/faculty-profile/catherine-ceniza-choy>

2015-2016 Fulbright Distinguished Lecturer

Yonsei University, Korea

Professor of Ethnic Studies

University of California, Berkeley (on sabbatical leave in 2015-2016)